

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

This American story could not have been told without the help of the following people. Beginning with my talented editor, Susan Herman; a very special thank you for gently guiding this novice author through the sometimes foggy and confusing forest of storytelling.

Thank you and special recognition to the late William Garrigle. William, his wife, Rosalind and their daughter, Susan Mallaney – all three have been so wonderfully helpful, supportive and cooperative. They entrusted me with access to their family photos and other documents I needed to accurately tell Jakob's story.

To Steve Forster: your candid critique inspired and personally challenged me to keep researching and to dig deeper within myself in order to tell a more detailed story.

To Wayne Grenning: Wayne, your expertise in the engine field, your willingness to share your photos, articles, interviews and even an excerpt from your manuscript has been nothing short of amazing. What rich resources these are. I could not have crafted this account without you! Thank you, my friend.

To Tilar Mazzeo: without you sharing your expertise and insight into the proper ways of storytelling this narrative would never have become possible.

To Robert Wojtowicz and Aggie: both of you took the time to honestly critique and appraise the manuscript. Without the valuable input from each of you, I would not have this final edition.

These remaining names and organizations have also provided crucial information. It's been a team effort. Thank you!

Chris Bellanger, Sara Border, Lucas R. Clawson, Phil Cohen, Patrick Connelly, Christopher Damiani, Janina Decker, Dana Dorman, Linda Gross, Joel Havens, Frank Heidermanns, Ralf

Krüger, Hermann Langen, Klaus Lüdtke, Jouni Filip Maho, Jane McGuinness, Scott McGurk, Kenneth Milano, Scott Mosley, Joe Murphy, Wade V. Myers, Erika Piola, Greg Plunges, Bill Roorbach, Ruth Schwartz, Lynsey Sczechowicz, Nancy Shawcross, Jonathan R. Stayer, George Tselos, Dietmar Voss, Jacinda Williams, Ed Youngblood, Ancestry.com, the British Library, California State Polytechnic University of Pomona, Camden County Historical Society, Chicago History Museum, Coolspring Power Museum, Deutz AG, Glendora Public Library, Great War Primary Document Archives (GWPDA.org), Hagley Museum, Harvard Library, Historical Society of Pennsylvania, Historical Society of the United States District Court for the District of New Jersey, Los Angeles Public Library, Mount Vernon Cemetery, National Archives at New York City, National Parks Service, and the Ohio State University Library.